given by him to his friend Schollendorf. A transcription and translation of the inscriptions accompanies this lot; height of cup $6\frac{1}{4}$ in. (3)

* * Baron Friedrich von der Trenck (1726-94), soldier of fortune and probably spy, was the writer of a celebrated autobiography in thirteen volumes, which has been translated into several languages. He started life in the Prussian Army as an orderly officer on the staff of Frederick the Great, but fell into disgrace because of a love affair with that monarch's sister, Princess Amelie, and was arrested in 1743 as an Austrian spy, and confined in the fortress of Glatz. Escaping in 1746, he took service in the Russian army, and afterwards in that of Austria; but, visiting Prussia in 1754, he was arrested as an escaped prisoner and confined at Magdeburg for nearly ten years, during which time, and with his hands in chains, he engraved this and other cups, three of which are mentioned in his memoirs. Several of these are in Continental museums, but this specimen is believed to be the only one in this country. On his release he tried various professions and was employed by the Austrian Government in diplomatic or secret missions to France and England. He was in Paris in 1791, and, after living in safety throughout the Terror, was denounced as an Austrian spy and guillotined on the 25th July, 1794. The present cup was exhibited at the Exhibition of Pewter at Clifford's Inn, 1904, vide p. 46 in the catalogue, and has been illustrated and described in Mr. W. Redman's "Handbook of Pewter and Sheffield Plate," and also in "The Connoisseur," vol. X, p. 222.

THE PROPERTY OF

Sir Francis Newdigate=~~Newdegate~~, K.C.M.G.Arbury Hall, Warwickshire.

472 A VERY FINE AND IMPORTANT CENTREPIECE, by Paul Lamerie; London, 1743; wt. 208 ozs. 15 dwts. (14)

* * This (which, when fitted together, forms a centrepiece), can be used as six distinct articles, and consists of an oval urn-shaped vase, embossed with landscapes, within rococo scroll panels in high relief, and with festoons of roses. It has a fascas pattern rim and terminal figures of cherubs for handles, and stands on four scroll feet, terminating in lions' masks and paws, with cherubs' heads in scroll-work between; height $8\frac{1}{4}$ in., top $6\frac{3}{4}$ in. by 8 in. Into this vase a fruit dish fits, with scroll border and ornamented with shells and flowers, with a cherub's head at either end, all in very high relief; $12\frac{1}{4}$ in. by $10\frac{3}{4}$ in. Four heavy scroll branches support four smaller dishes of similar pattern, on three feet, for use as salvers; diam. $7\frac{1}{8}$ in. The rim of the vase is inscribed on the inside, "The Gift of y^e. R^y. Hon^{ble}. Sophia Baroness Lempster to S^r. Roger & Lady Newdigate, A : D : 1743." In this year Sir Roger married Sophia Conyers, a granddaughter of Lord Lempster, and the pieces are engraved with the arms of Newdigate (gules, three lions' jambs erased, argent) impaling those of Conyers (azure, a maunch or, over all a bendlet gobony ermine and gules). This centrepiece has, up to the last few weeks, been exhibited in the Loan Court at South Kensington Museum, where there is a reproduction of a larger but somewhat similar centrepiece by the same maker, with three castors upon either side and candle branches, the original of which was in the Bobrinsky Collection at Moscow.
